TURKISH ARMY READY

Other Balkan States Ready to Take Active Part in the Affair if Peace Cannot Be Affected.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Athens, Greece, Oct. 10.—Great enthusiasm has been aroused throughout Greece by a speech by King George to several thousand people who had assembled at the palace to welcome him on his return to the capital last night. His majesty said: "I am convinced that the Hellenic people whose appreciation of patriotism I have been able to prize during my long reign will always do their duty. Their manly and calm attitude is worthy of Hellenic people especially in the serious times through which we are passing. I have every confidence in the government which has given so many proofs of its patriotism."

At the conclusion of the speech a great shout of "Long Live the King! Long Live Greece! Hurrah for the King!" was raised by the gathering, among which were members of a number of diplomats. Delegations of patriotic societies waved banners while bands played the national hymn. A procession then was formed which marched through the city.

Bulgarian Situation. Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 10.—The Bulgarian premier and minister of foreign affairs, I. E. Gueckoff, declared this morning that he did not yet despair of war being averted. The council of ministers held yesterday had not resulted in any decision and the exchange of views between the Bulgarian government and the cabinets at Belgrade, Serbia and Athens was continuing. As Montenegro had begun hostilities against Turkey, she naturally has no more today in the matter, he continued. In any case Bulgaria's decision would not long be delayed, he declared.

Work For Intervention. Constantinople, Oct. 10.—More energetic intervention by the powers to prevent the outbreak of hostilities on the part of the Bulgarian Servian and Grecians is to be work of the council today. Shots are reported to have been exchanged between the Turkish and Bulgarian troops occupying the advanced posts on the frontier at Thriss and Kilsura.

Addressing a great crowd which congregated in front of his residence late last night, he said, "I still hope that peace will be maintained. Our allies do not favor war and what we ask for also corresponds to the interests of the neighboring empire and represents a first and interested condition for the peaceful co-existence of the Bulgarian people and the Ottoman empire." The premier's words were greeted with cries of "Hurrah for War! Hurrah for War!" He then repeated word for word that which he had said.

ROOSEVELT REPLIES TO WILSON ATTACK

Big Bull Moose Says Wilson Has Maintained "Sullen Hostility To Labor."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Superior, Wis., Oct. 13.—"I probably should not make the reference to Mr. Wilson that I am going to make," said Col. Roosevelt today, "if he had not attacked me, but when anybody attacks me, he might as well understand that I won't take it lying down. I'm a man of peaceful disposition. I think I am well able to defend myself." Colonel Roosevelt stopped an hour in Superior this morning on his way to Minnesota. His managers had planned a comparatively easy day for him after his two days' rain-fire speech making in Michigan. He was to spend most of today in Duluth and was scheduled for only one other speech, besides the one at Superior. Having given more than a month to the exposition of the principles of the new party, which he thinks are now well understood, he plans to make a new line of attack during the closing weeks of his campaign and "limber up the big guns."

His speech in Houghton in which he attacked Governor Wilson for the "sullen hostility" to labor which he said Mr. Wilson has maintained in the past was the first of the series which he expects to make. Col. Roosevelt called attention in his speech here today to what he said were inconsistencies in Gov. Wilson's position. "Mr. Wilson said he" has attacked the proposed federal legislation to prohibit child labor, in very strong language which is to be found in the North American Review volume 182. He here denounces as mischievous the effort for the regulation of labor in mills and factories by the federal government. The democratic platform in one plank takes this same position saying "we denounce as usurpation the efforts to enlarge and magnify by indirect means the powers of the federal government. This referring to the regulation of interstate commerce, but in dealing with the trusts the democratic platform states that it favors denying the trusts permission to engage in interstate trade at all. It seems preposterous to discuss two such conflicting positions and the mere fact that they can be put in the same platform shows the serious worthlessness of the effort for the social reform work from a party capable of taking such action in its declaration of principles. But Mr. Wilson's own statement as to the interstate commerce law and child labor as quoted above is absolutely incompatible with his position in standing upon the democratic platform with its plank as given above about interstate commerce. Either Mr. Wilson and the democratic platform do not mean what they say or else it is Mr. Wilson's duty to repudiate either the plank above quoted in the democratic platform or his own statement about interstate commerce and child labor."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Berlin, Oct. 10.—The German aerial fleet suffered a great loss today in the total wrecking explosion of one of its immense military dirigible balloons and of the hut in which it was stationed at Reinickendorf, a suburb of Berlin. The dirigible, which was one of the semi-rigid type, with internal air balloons to preserve its shape, invented by Major Gross of the Prussian army was being refilled with hydrogen gas by some of the flying corps. The gas, which is highly inflammable, caused the tube and ceased to break out. A violent explosion ensued completely destroying the dirigible and blowing the hut to splinters. [BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, Eng., Oct. 10.—"The whole matter of the Panama Canal bill together with the views of the legal advisers to the British crown on the subject is under consideration by the cabinet," was the reply today of Sir Edward Gray, British secretary of foreign affairs to a question in the House of Commons. W. A. S. Hewins, a unionist member asked whether the British foreign office had received any definite reply to the representations made to the United States and whether the British government was making any further representations. Sir Edward Gray said, "In informing the United States of Great Britain's intention to address a communication to Washington when the Panama Canal bill had been received and considered the foreign office adds that should there be any difference between the two countries in regard to the Hay-Pauncefote treaty which could not be settled by other means Great Britain would ask that it referred to arbitration."

Replying to a further question as to whether he had seen a statement made by President Taft that the British representations had been made tardily, Sir Edward Gray said he had not seen it and would be glad to know its date because the bill did not pass in its final form until toward the end of August.

GIANTS WON BY A TWO TO ONE SCORE IN SECOND GAME

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Boston, Mass., Oct. 10.—New York won the game today in the world championship series with the score of two runs against that of Boston. New York failed to score after the fifth inning. Bedient and Cady was the battery put in by Boston to check the Giants in the last part of the game. Boston's lone run came in the ninth.

Following a night of rain which subsided in the early morning the Giants and Red Sox prepared today to play off the 2nd game of the series for the baseball championship. New York's score of six to six brought the scene again to Fenway Park. The Red Sox had one game won and one tied and the Giants one game lost and one tied. Prospects for the playing today were dubious until an hour after sunrise the sun began to shine brightly on the rain drenched ground. The rain failed to dampen the spirits of the small number of fans who sheltered by boxes, boards and newspapers, kept their places at the bleacher gates through the night through occasional down pours.

One man said he had left the grounds only once in thirty-six hours and then only long enough to get shaved. The official forecaster predicted occasional showers during the day but said officially that he thought they would not be heavy enough to make the ground unfit for playing. Either the rain or the novelty of the world series baseball has worn off as today there was a smaller number at the gates than yesterday. Much uncertainty over the reserved seats is apparent today.

Neither side scored in the first inning though New York got one hit in the second inning, however, New York managed to get one man across the plate while Boston failed to cross the bag. The third inning was a goose egg for both teams, neither side getting a run or an error. In the fourth inning it was a zero column added up for New York although the Red Sox obtained one hit. In the fifth inning the Giants scored again with two hits. The Boston failed to make a run by negotiated one hit. The sixth inning was without a run. Marquard for one hit. Neither side scored in the seventh although the Red Sox again found Marquard for a hit. It was good clean ball, fast and furious. No score in the eighth. Boston scored in the ninth making one run. Final score: Team R. H. E. Boston 1 7 0 New York 2 7 1

TELEGRAMS DESIRED HAD BEEN DESTROYED

Government Unable To Secure Messages Wanted As Testimony In Dynamite Conspiracy Cases.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 10.—Managers of telegraph offices at Spokane, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco testified at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial today that telegrams sought by the government had been destroyed. J. B. Coggins, San Francisco, was asked to produce the telegram reading "Clean House" and sent by Eugene A. Clancy from Boston to 27 Excelsior avenue, San Francisco. Coggins said the telegraph files had been destroyed. The government charges that on reading of the loss of life at the Los Angeles Times disaster, Clancy then on a visit to Boston, decided to destroy certain evidence relative to various Pacific coast explosions and that he sent a "clean house" message both to his home and to his labor headquarters. The other telegrams sought by the government's attorneys were by between Olaf A. Tveitmo, San Francisco and J. B. McNamara before the latter went to Los Angeles. A telegram sent to Orville E. McManigal on March 3, 1911 from Omaha Nebraska, to J. J. McNamara, Indiana, was produced. It read: "Kindly send me $100, check to Lincoln, Neb. R. Woods." This according to McManigal was agreed upon is the signal that he was ready to blow up the new court house at Omaha, so J. J. McNamara could instruct J. H. McNamara to blow up a plant at Columbus, Ind., the same night. Henry W. Legleitner now of Denver, was alleged to have sent from Pittsburgh a telegram saying "Can I come to headquarters. Important." This was according to the government. Legleitner appeared at the Iron Workers' headquarters in Indianapolis with a suit case in which nitro-glycerin had been carried.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Havana, Oct. 10.—This being the forty-second anniversary of the beginning of the ten years' war (1895-78) for Cuban independence, the day was observed as a general holiday. Business in Havana was largely suspended and all public and many private buildings were decorated in honor of the occasion. FEDERATION COMPLETED ITS SIXTEENTH SESSION

FURTHER DETAILS AS TO THE EXPENSES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Oct. 10.—Charles D. Hilles, chairman of the republican national committee, and John D. Archbold, president of the Standard Oil company, were the witnesses to be examined today by the Clapp committee investigating campaign funds. Mr. Archbold was recalled by the committee to tell what papers he might have found bearing on the contribution of $100,000 he said the Standard Oil company made to the Roosevelt campaign fund in 1904. L. C. Laylin of Columbus, Ohio, assistant secretary of the interior, manager of the Taft primary campaign in Ohio, the first witness to testify today, said he had filed a statement in Ohio showing total Taft expenses of $65,000 or $75,000 in the state primaries. Charles F. Taft, Charles D. Hilles and Hubert Taft, a nephew of Charles F. Taft, were given by Mr. Laylin as contributing most of the fund. The money came to him, he said, through Arthur I. Vorhees.

Washington, Oct. 10.—A. H. Plant, comptroller of the Southern railway, said he knew of no contributions to the pre-convention campaigns. This year and did not turn over any fund to Congressman Underwood's managers before or during the Baltimore convention.

Senator Dixon had testified it was a common report that Mr. Plant had handled the funds for the Underwood campaign.

John D. Archbold followed Mr. Plant on the stand. Mr. Archbold's attention was called to several letters to Senator J. B. Foraker, relating to sums of $15,000, $14,500 and $10,000 which the witness said he undoubtedly wrote and that the amounts stated were sent as a result of "legal duties" performed by Senator Foraker. Senator Clapp produced a copy of a magazine showing what purported to be photographic copy of a letter to Senator J. B. Foraker, dated January 19, 1909. I have no recollection of it, but I've no doubt I wrote the letter," said Mr. Archbold. The letter referred to "threatened and described very objectionable legislation at Columbus" concerning which Mr. Archbold said he had wanted to talk to Senator Hanna. It referred particularly to people active in supporting a resolution for "an investigating committee" and asked Senator Hanna to "do everything possible to compass their defeat." Mr. Archbold asked to be allowed to explain that letter.

"That was the year of 'strike' legislation in various state legislatures," said Mr. Archbold, "and it was necessary for all corporate interests to appeal to their friends to prevent that sort of things. It explains my letter to Senator Hanna." Chairman Clapp then produced a copy of a letter from Archbold to former Representative G. H. Grosvenor of Ohio on Oct. 27, 1900, enclosing $1,000. "I think that was to aid in his campaign for reelection," said Mr. Archbold. Of another "printed copy" of a letter purporting to have been written by Mr. Hanna of which there was no photographic copy, Mr. Archbold said he had no recollection. Mr. Archbold said he had no doubt he wrote "a letter of March 20, 1903 to Senator Hanna, saying that 'we are amazed to learn that Smith W. Bennett is making a canvass for attorney general of Ohio,' and asking that Senator Hanna do his best to prevent Bennett's election."

John D. Archbold, president of the Standard Oil company testified to the Clapp committee today that a receipt of the late Cornelius N. Bliss, gave him for the company's $100,000 contribution to the Roosevelt campaign fund of 1904 had been destroyed just before the death of H. H. Rogers. "I was not a thing of pleasure to look at," said Archbold.

CLOSING HOURS OF CONVENTION MARKED BY INTENSE BITTERNESS IN CHOICE OF PRESIDENT.

SUFFRAGE ENDORSED

Minority Report Adopted by Delegates in Preference to the Majority Ruling of Policy Committee.

Wisconsin's Federation of Women's Clubs have completed the work of the sixteenth annual session. They have elected their officers for the coming year; they have endorsed the cause of woman's suffrage, and have decided against redistricting the state along lines to be laid down by the organization.

The convention which opened on Tuesday morning last, came to an end this afternoon after a morning session which proved to be the most spirited of all the three days' meetings. Everything that transpired can not be printed, as the convention decided to exclude all but members, during a part of the session, when the election of the president promised to become more than a heated argument.

The election of Mrs. Strathearn as president, over the insurgent or progressive candidate, Mrs. Leek, and the adoption of the minority report of the policy committee in place of the majority report, giving the cause of suffrage a victory, were the two most interesting features of the closing day's gathering.

After a discussion which was limited by common understanding to a half hour, the motion of Mrs. H. M. Youmans of Waukesha, chairman of the policy committee, that the minority report of the committee favoring the endorsement of the equal suffrage cause by the State Federation of Women's clubs, was passed by the vote of 129 to 63.

Elect Mrs. Strathearn. Following the taking of this vote Mrs. H. D. Murdock of Janesville announced the result of the vote on state president which had been taken following a stormy session earlier in the morning. The result was overwhelmingly in favor of Mrs. J. A. Strathearn of Kaukauna, candidate of the nominating committee, with 180 votes to Mrs. W. P. Leek's 53. Mrs. Leek, who now resides at Beloit, was the so-called progressive candidate who was nominated yesterday by Mrs. A. C. Neville of Green Bay.

The more heated part of the business session of the club women, this morning came when after the report of the credentials committee which was presented by Mrs. E. O. Kimberly of this city, when the matter of the election of officers came up.

Fight Over Ballots. Mrs. Pease, chairman of the convention, stated that she had a word to say to the ladies. She announced that after consultation last evening she had decided that it would be just and fair to both sides if the names of both candidates for president were placed on the convention ballot. She stated that she believed that she was following the precedent of the general federation in doing this and hoped that the delegates would uphold her in this action.

The ballots as printed at the order of the chairman, were then placed in the hands of the tellers. Then the exciting part of the day's proceedings developed. Mrs. Martin, chairman of the nominating committee, came forward with the announcement that the ballots as prepared at the direction of the chairman had been destroyed. How this came to pass is not known, but it was evident that this action had been taken.

Ask Reporters to Leave. At this juncture Mrs. A. C. Neville of Green Bay moved that the convention go into executive session, meaning that delegates alone should be present excluding all others, especially the newspaper reporters. Before the motion to go into executive session was carried the reporters withdrew out of deference to the chairman.

From the tenor of the meeting before the departure of the newspaper representatives, it was plain that the convention was in for an exciting session. The discussion during the next thirty minutes concerned the matter of the ballots, and according to some of the delegates was not nearly as uproarious as might be supposed. The matter was settled finally by a vote of the convention deciding to the effect that the name of Mrs. Leek be written on the ballots which had been destroyed by Mrs. Martin of Green Bay, chairman of the nominating committee. The convention then proceeded to the matter of election with becoming decorum.

Contrary to Constitution. The whole matter of the ballots was a complicated one and it is reasonable to suppose that both sides in the case acted on their best judgment. It was urged in favor of the nominating committee that the constitution did not permit of the printing of any other names on the official ballot other than those recommended by the committee. Thus it was made to appear by some of the delegates, more versed in parliamentary procedure, that the action of the president was not legal.

Mrs. Pease, however, was undoubtedly prompted by a spirit of fair play and her recommendation was really carried out as a matter of fact.

Candidates Friendly. Before the convention went into executive session at the very beginning of the discussion, Mrs. Strathearn stated that as far as she personally was concerned she would prefer that the name of Mrs. Leek appear on the ballots. She said she was not cognizant of any irregularity on the part of the nominating committee and it was her desire that the convention take a fair attitude in the matter. It was quite evident that there was no feeling between the two candidates, in spite of the apparent animosity between their backers. Mrs. Leek and Mrs. Strathern were seen in quiet consultation before the result of the vote was announced. They were evidently out of sympathy with the fight which had been carried on.

FEDERATION HAS COMPLETED SESSION

Suffrage Matter Up.
There was plainly a current of suppressed excitement tingling through out the convention when Mrs. Youmans took the platform to read the report of the policy committee. The culminating event of the convention was about to transpire. The one thing which dozens of delegates had had uppermost in their minds throughout the three days, was to be considered. The federation would take some action for or against woman's suffrage.

When Mrs. Youmans came to this section of her report she explained that the majority of the committee were not in favor of the federation endorsing the suffrage movement. As chairman of the committee and in behalf of the minority side she presented a resolution to the effect that the Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs go on record as endorsing the equal suffrage cause in the state of Wisconsin.

For and Against.
Mrs. Youmans in presenting her motion, talked earnestly for the suffrage cause. She felt that it was a matter of supreme importance and believed that the club women of Wisconsin should lend their active support by endorsing it in the present convention.

Mrs. R. H. Edwards of Oshkosh was the next speaker, urging against the adoption of the minority report and against the endorsement of suffrage. She declared that she did not believe that such action as that proposed was constitutional as the club women were pledged by their constitution to be non-political. In her estimation it was a question of what the delegates thought wise to do whether they favored suffrage or not.

During the whole of the discussion of the suffrage question the delegates paid the closest attention. There was frequent applause when some speaker voiced the sentiment of some portion of the delegates. The matter of being instructed for or against was brought up, those opposed to the adoption of the report were firm in the contention that delegates had no right to take so momentous a step, binding 8,000 women of the state one way or the other, without instructions from their various clubs. Mrs. Elmermann of Milwaukee and others brought up this contention.

Suffrage Aid to Clubs.
Mrs. Gidden of Oshkosh gave an appeal in behalf of suffrage as did Miss Stearns of Milwaukee, who declared that when the organization promises to promote mutual helpfulness, as it does in Article I of the constitution, she could see no better way of doing this than endorsing suffrage and obtaining for women the right to vote giving more effect to movements established as a part of their club work.

There were others who spoke and many others who were anxious for a word, but the time was limited. A question arose as to whether an actual time limit had been set and it was found that there had not been; it was simply an understanding. The understanding was abided by, however, and the vote which was decisively in favor of endorsing suffrage, was taken. The adoption of the report of the policy committee as finally amended was passed by a viva-voce vote.

Endowment Fund.
The matter of the state and national endowment funds were other important matters taken up at the meeting this morning. Mrs. Wheeler of Wauwatosa proposed a plan for raising in one year over $13,000, the endowment fund, needed to complete the state endowment fund. It involved the chain plan of penny collections and did not seem to meet the approval of the clubs. Numerous pledges from $5 to $10 annually until the various clubs had completed their assessments were received from the delegates and recorded by the secretary. It was regretted by some that this method which will mean that a number of years will be needed before the fund is collected, finally prevailed.

It was voted on motion of Miss Stearns that the Wisconsin Federation send a telegram to Mrs. Pennybacker at Houston, Texas, announcing that the Wisconsin clubs would contribute their share of the general endowment fund, that now being some $14,000, at the earliest possible date.

The convention adjourned shortly after one o'clock. The only remaining function was the reception at the

LAXATIVE FOR OLD PEOPLE—"CASCARETS."

What Glasses are to Weak Eyes, Cascarets are to Weak Bowels—a 10-Cent Box Will Truly Amaze You.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles. So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

She had lived in Harmony and Milton for a long period of 62 years, and since her husband's death eighteen years ago has resided, except for occasional visits to other members of her family, with her son Frank and his wife.

Rev. W. A. Leighton officiated at the home and at the Milton cemetery, where her body was laid to rest. He delivered an address at the home from the text "Verily I say unto you, except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone, but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit."

The pall bearers were: Messrs. Ed. Hopple, H. A. Belts, William Crandall, Henry Gray, Frank Summerbell, and C. A. Rice.

Special music was rendered by the Mesdames Hume and Holmes.

RACING MATINEE AT PARK IS POSTPONED

Matinee Races Between Six Cylinder Pen and Peter Emmett Have Been Postponed.

On account of weather conditions which are unfavorable, the matinee races which were scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at the Janesville Driving Park have been postponed. Announcement of the date on which they will be held, will be made later. Considerable interest was taken in the races in which Six Cylinder Pen, owned by John Huginin, living south of the city, was to have been matched against Peter Emmett, owned by Phil Sheridan of this city. The Huginin horse made a mark this season of 2:12, and is considered by some to be the fastest horse in this section. The Sheridan horse has never been marked, but has taken second place in every race in which he has been entered. Some of the experts say that he has never been it out to his full speed, and that when it comes to the trial, he will show unusual speed. Among the horsemen there is considerable discussion of the merits of the two horses, and it is said, there are offers of backing their arguments with something more substantial than talk.

Mr. Butler H. Bates, 72 E. 12th St., Fond du Lac relates: "Kidney trouble bothered me for a long time. I had also a severe pain across my back and other irregularities when I heard of Foley Kidney Pills. I got them and began taking them with the result that the pain left me and the action of my kidneys became normal and after taking four bottles, I am better than I have been for years." A GOOD COUGH CURE

Do you remember the good old cough cure mother used to have? It didn't taste like cherry pie but it did cure a cough in a hurry. Mr. Plennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, makes our cough balsam by percolation direct from the roots, barks and balsams of wild cherry, bloodroot, Lobelia, white pine bark. Thereby obtaining the full medicinal virtue and strength of each drug, making it into a syrup we call Badger Cough Balsam. It is made after an old prescription which is today the best cure for any cough, bronchial or lung trouble, healing and soothing to the irritated throat and lungs, it cures by assisting to expell the phlegm from the lungs, not by dosing the system with morphine and chloroform as do the modern patent cough remedies, deadening the nervous system, stupefying the lungs into retaining the mucous, thereby bringing on possible pneumonia and pleurisy. Badger Cough Balsam is a trustworthy expectorant, it loosens up and expells the phlegm. Get a bottle today for yourself or the children. It's safe to use, 25c. Badger Drug Co. Right handed pitchers have been more successful than southpaws in the American league this season. Fifth and sixth positions are also occupied by fingers who hurl from the right side. Two southpaws, Plank of the Athletics and Baskette of Cleveland have second and fourth places.

ORGANIZED BOWLING LEAGUE LAST NIGHT

Officers of League Elected, Teams Picked, and Schedule for the Season Was Arranged.

At a meeting of the bowlers last evening in the office of Dr. G. B. Thuerer in the Jackson block the Bowling League was organized for the coming season, officers elected the teams picked, and a schedule of games for the first half of the season was arranged. The meeting was largely attended and considerable interest in the opening of the games was shown. Edward Baumann was elected temporary chairman of the meeting last evening, and was afterwards made permanent chairman of the league. Dr. G. B. Thuerer was re-elected as secretary and treasurer of the league. A schedule committee, composed of Dr. Thuerer, William F. Heise, and Floyd Yeomans was chosen, and it was decided that the executive board should comprise the captains of the six teams and the secretary and treasurer. Captains of the teams will be elected next Monday night when the league season is officially opened.

The teams selected last evening, and the substitute members of the teams are as follows:

Browns—Sutherland, Newman, J. Baumann, Kueck, F. Gridley.
Greys—Gibson, E. Baumann, Myhr, Fieser, McKeig, Harlow, Gsell.
Cardinals—Heise, Mead, Jeffers, Richards, Yeomans.
Maroons—G. Baumann, Ryan, Lee, Cunningham, Carle.
Blues—Hockett, Winters, Thuerer, O'Donnell, Osborn.
Subs: C. Schaller, Cronin, Mott, Richter, Wolcott, Craft, Hammond, Pitcher, O'Grady, Poenichen, McLaughlin, and Al. Knuth.

Horace S. Fogel, president of the Philadelphia National league baseball team, is out after the scalp of Tom Lynch, president of the National league, and predicts the early downfall of the latter. Fogel recently issued a statement charging that the New York National league team was able to win the pennant this season because the New York team had been unduly favored by umpires.

The Giants' greatest asset in the coming world's series, will be Manager John J. McGraw. Last year he took an admittedly inferior team and made the Athletics hustle for championship honors. He forced the American leaguers to play six games before the series came to an end. This season it has been McGraw's generalship that has kept the Giants on top. If there is anyone who is capable of leading the Giants to victory in the world's series it is this same man, John J. McGraw.

Hurling the sixteen-pound hammer a distance of 131 feet 5 inches, Watt McGrath, the giants New York policeman, recently made a new world's record, beating John Flanigan's old record of 130 feet 1 inch by more than ten feet.

Upsetting another Yale football tradition, which has insisted on open practice at least through the middle of the season, Head Coach Howe has started secret practice at the big eastern institution. The coaches say the team is developing slowly.

BASKETBALL SEASON TO OPEN TOMORROW

First Games to Be Played tomorrow Night at the Y. M. C. A., Two Matches Being Scheduled.

With the games tomorrow night in the Y. M. C. A. building, the basketball season for association teams will be officially opened. Two games are to be played, and although it is early in the season for indoor sports, some good scrappy contests are expected. The players have been practicing faithfully for some time past and have rounded into well form. The big match of the evening will be between the regular association team and the "All Stars," a squad composed mostly of high school players. Preliminary to this, however, there will be between the intermediates and last year's quintet of the B. Juniors. The rivalry between the squads is keen. The lineups as announced will be as follows:

Intermediates: E. Kuhlman, c; Leslie Stewart and Ralph Soultman, forwards; H. Mohr, and R. Barnes, guards; R. Smiley, sub.
B Juniors: Victor Blaisdel, center; W. Rau and M. Dalton, guards; McKeig and Stickney, forwards; McElroy, sub.

Y. M. C. A.: Langdon, c; Green and Roger Cunningham, forwards; Brown and Booth, guards; Koch, sub.
"All Stars": V. Hemming, c; E. Atwood and R. Edler, forwards; J. Ryan and R. Falter, guards; R. Cannon, sub.

WILL USE DRIVING PARK FOR GAMES

Coach Curtis Allowed To Use Fair Grounds For Home Games of High School Football Team.

The use of the Fair Grounds has been allowed Coach Curtis this fall for the purpose of playing the home games of the high school football team. Inside the half mile track is a suitable spot to play the games as the ground is level and there is grass covering this piece of land. The Athletic park, where the games have been played for the past years, is not in any condition, for the reason that there is a muddy baseball diamond and every time it rains the diamond is a sea of mud. This makes it uncertain for the Coach and it is thought he will accept the Driving Park for this purpose this fall.

The grandstand will give the spectators a chance of witnessing the games with a shelter to cover them, and gives them a better chance of seeing the plays of the games.

Players Over-Confident.
Over-confidence seems to be sticking out among the football men at present, from the attitude which they are taking since the Stoughton victory. During practice this week many of the first team men were absent and the coach has the impression that they do not want to play football or else they are celebrating the Stoughton victory. He has not asked for their reasons, but merely stated that so long as the men fail to appear for practice, only those who come out for practice will be given a chance to play this week and perhaps all the season. Since this threat, all men have appeared for practice, thus giving the coach the impression that they are eager to play.

Last night's practice was a strenuous one in preparation for the hard game at Lake Geneva on Saturday, with the strong Northwestern Military and Naval Academy. The wet grounds kept them from any hard scrimmage, but it is hoped that the team will be in good shape for the coming game.

Captain Connell was tried out for quarterback, to take Stewart's place if needed. A sub-quarter should be ready to take his place as he has a bad ankle, which will improve rapidly if he is careful with it. Connell showed up good. Several men were tried out for this position, but it is doubtful who will take the place when called upon.

The game for Saturday is in doubt. Northwestern has a heavy team, and the locals will only have to be in form and be speed boys to overcome the heavy attack of their opponents. Speed is what they are figuring on, and this they are developing very rapidly. Falter will play in this game and will undoubtedly be placed at right tackle. Falter is anxious to play in the backfield, but the way Cummings is playing his position, and is the title of a beautifully illustrated book which has been published by one of our eastern railway companies and is in the hands of the GAZETTE TRAVEL BUREAU for distribution. These mountains, made famous by Washington Irving in his tales of the Legend of Sleepy Hollow and Rip Van Winkle, are declared by many travelers to be the most picturesque mountain region on the globe, and the person who has never had the pleasure of a trip to the haunts of Rip Van Winkle will be filled with a desire to make a trip eastward which will include a sight seeing tour, if not a sojourn at some of the delightful points described in this book.

From the origin of the name Catskill and primeval history of the mountains, to the description of the hotels and retreats in the mountains, which civilization has built for the convenience and recreation of man, all is given in this book in a way that absorbs the reader's attention.

Radium emits three streams of minute particles. These all carry definite charges of electricity, which made their discovery possible. No microscope could detect them, but they became apparent under proper conditions because of the electrical charge.

"Don't you want to join in and reform public affairs?" "Law, no!" replied the quiet woman. "I've had trouble enough reforming one man, let alone a whole political party."

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

In view of facts brought out in the examination of the two boys charged with murder, the question of "Who is responsible?" is again worth considering. Here is a summary of the evidence offered late yesterday afternoon:

"Edward Blandford, who gave his age as 18, and who had been in company with Meyer and Berger during the evening of Sept. 30, upon being called to the stand, testified that he met Meyer and Berger on the corner of Center and Western avenues at 8 o'clock and in their company went up town. They first went to W. A. Knipp's saloon and stayed there about one-half an hour. The witness testified that the drunk white boy altogether, but that his companions drank beer. At the time William Knipp, the proprietor, was serving them from behind the bar. From this place they went to the Royal theatre and after spending an hour there went back again to Knipp's saloon. Here they stayed until 11 o'clock. Berger and Meyer drinking beer continuously and the witness drinking white pop. Answering the question, the witness could not tell how many drinks they had had during the evening, but said that he had spent two dollars in the place. His companions, he said, had spent about the same amount. He said he left his companions there at 11 o'clock, and upon being asked if they were drunk, he said he did not think so, but they were feeling good."

"It also appears that the boys, in company with many others, were in the habit of gambling in a cigar store. These conditions, which seem so startling, in the light of exposure, are not new. We have been so blind and so indifferent that we refused to recognize them, but they have been going on from bad to worse, for many months."

"The question of vital importance now is, 'What do we propose to do about it?' The tragedy, thrown on the screen by the panorama of vice, a few days ago, has stirred the community to its very center, and all sorts of reforms are suggested, but the spasm of virtue will soon pass unless action is taken without delay."

"It is safe to assume that the selling of drinks to boys in many saloons, is the rule and not the exception, and it seems to matter little whether the boys are blind or possessed of all their faculties."

The law which prohibits this kind of traffic is intended to protect your boys and mine, at an age when they need protecting, but we are so indifferent that we refuse to demand its enforcement, and the city authorities are so negligent that this law, like many others, has become a dead letter. That our girls need protecting as much as our boys is not a debatable question."

There are two or three things that might be done to improve conditions. Things that can be done, if the city authorities are in sympathy with popular sentiment at the present time, and why shouldn't they be?

In the first place the number of saloons should be reduced one half.

This would give the men engaged in the business a chance to make a living without resorting to all sorts of law-breaking devices. Then the saloons should be confined to a saloon district, as they are in many cities.

In the second place the saloon business should be put on a commercial basis the same as all other lines of business. Cut out the loafing equipment and the screens, close the back entrance and the business will largely regulate itself. The state should have a law making the landlord liable with the tenant, as many states have.

The people of the city were never more thoroughly aroused than they are today, and well they may be for we are fast becoming a by-word. Not only the morals, but the health of the city is suffering from neglect. The following paragraph describes some of the conditions in our public school buildings, as brought out yesterday by Dr. Dresser and Mr. Terry, on their tour of inspection.

"In the Jefferson school lighting facilities were found inadequate. The lighting area was very poor and should at once be remedied. The ventilation was poorly arranged and not sufficient, the presence of dirt in the building called to the attention of the janitor as dangerous to the health of the pupils and other conditions not found entirely satisfactory."

"Who is responsible?" You say the school board, of which the city council is a part, but you and I are responsible for the school board. And so in all departments it comes back to personal responsibility and carelessness neglect. If the dastardly crime, which has aroused us, results in an awakening, which means more than a resolve, then the sacrifice of a life may not be entirely in vain."

ANOTHER PROGRESSIVE STATE.

The evidence of progressive reform in Wisconsin is the ever present and rapidly increasing tax roll. Public speakers and long-haired writers point with pride to the state which leads all others in the great uplift movement, but it is interesting to note that this class of enthusiasts are feeding at the public crib, with rare exception.

The state of Minnesota is also in the progressive column, and aspires to rival the Badger state in all good works. That success is crowning effort is evidenced by a summary of monetary conditions, recently compiled by the Wall Street Journal, from which it appears that the honest Swede, across the line, is paying the fiddler. The Journal says:

"Minnesota's debt, as given in the state treasurer's annual report for 1911, furnishes one of the curiosities of finance. The total issue of funding bonds of 1891 is given as $1,559,000; bonds of Jan. 1, 1892, 'paid as provided by law,' $1,700,000; funded debt all paid, $1,518,000; leaving the reader utterly at a loss to understand how many issues there were; whether the bonds of 1892 were or were not the same as those of 1891; or whether the $1,518,000 'funded debt all paid' represented the first or the second lot; and in either case how $1,518,000 can be made to liquidate a larger sum than itself."

"In benighted Wall Street it costs at least a dollar to pay a dollar, but Minnesota seems to have discovered some easier way to clean off old scores. It is of course just possible that its officials do not know how to present intelligibly its public accounts. In addition to the sums mentioned, there appears to be a million dollars of 'state capital certificates of indebtedness' outstanding. The state treasurer may perhaps be able to explain, but accounts that need any explanation at all are not what the public would tolerate in a mere corporation."

"In 1858, its first year as a state, Minnesota managed to pull through with the modest expenditure of $283,000; in 1902, the state, counties and towns expended $27,000,000; in 1911, the state alone expended nearly $16,000,000, and at the same rate of increase the counties and towns expended over $51,000,000 a total of $67,000,000. Here are the items of taxation, all of which, judging from the lowering of the previous year's balance in the treasury, and the muddled statement of debt, appear to have been expended:

Minnesota Taxes.
Revenues of—	1911	1902
The state.....	$15,612,049	$ 6,220,333
The counties.....	8,766,000	3,706,446
Cities & towns.....	$3,049,000	17,219,661

Totals.....$27,427,049 $27,146,140

"Estimated at 2 1/2 times the taxes of 1902, the rate at which the state taxes have increased."

"In 1910 the population was 2,075,708; the taxation per capita in 1911 was therefore about $32.50 per annum or $162.50 per family of five persons."

"It would be interesting to learn how many of the 40,000 emigrants, who during the last three years removed from the United States into Canada, left the state of Minnesota rather than submit to its onerous burden of taxation."

THE SAME WILSON.

When Dr. Wilson was a college president, he enjoyed an enviable reputation as an author, and one of his latest productions was a "History of the American people." In Vol. 5 of this history, he has the following to say of conditions, which existed in 1893-94, the lean years under democratic rule.

"A great poverty and depression had come upon the western mining regions and upon the agricultural region of the west and south. Prices had fallen.  Men of the poorer sort were idle everywhere, and filled with a sort of despair. All of the larger cities and manufacturing towns teemed with unemployed workmen, who were with the utmost difficulty kept from starvation by the systematic efforts of organized charity."

"Professor Wilson devotes several pages to Coxey's Army and other episodes of idleness and hard times and also describes the difficulty which President Cleveland experienced in maintaining the treasury reserve. No less than $87,000,000 in gold, says Dr. Wilson, 'had to be shipped over sea to the country's creditors in a single twelve-month, 1893,' and bonds had to be sold to secure gold, thus increasing the public debt. Then Dr. Wilson, writing as an historian and not thinking of ever being a candidate, wrote the following truthful and historic sentence (Page 263 of Vol. 5):

"Not until the year 1897, when the republican administration came in, did the crisis seem to be past."

"The republican party asks no better witness in this campaign than Woodrow Wilson, historian. When the republican administration came in the crisis was past. Then followed sixteen years of unexampled prosperity, a splendid contrast to the dark picture of 1893-94."

The same old party again aspires to assume control. Is it reasonable to suppose that where a statesman like the late Grover Cleveland, failed as an executive, that Professor Wilson can succeed, with the same inefficient party behind him?

Mr. Wilson says that he is not opposed to a protective tariff, but his party is hopelessly committed against it and he will be compelled to fall in line. American labor suffered in 1893 because of the free trade policy of the party in power, and it will suffer again in 1913 if the same party gains control. A vote for Taft means a vote for continued prosperity."

Governor McGovern is discovering that the bull moose and the elephant are more difficult to manage than a pair of bronchos. They were never intended to drive in double harness and for equestrian performance they are a little difficult to manage in a single ring however expert the rider.

Latest reports from all parts of the country are to the effect that Taft sentiment is growing. The sober second thought of the people is coming to the surface, and prosperity is regarded of more importance than political ambition. The november vote will be a surprise to many people."

And put you on the third term raft, Good-bye, McGovern, good-bye!

PRESS COMMENT.

Conservative Backing Strong.

No candidate that has the backing of the great conservative vote can be regarded as a weak candidate. To begin, Taft has a large substantial support and it will be a growing support. Times are good and they are going to be better. An era of great prosperity is dawning. There is work for everybody at good wages. If the cost of living is high it is also true that more people are able to meet the increased cost and lay something aside than at almost any other period in the nation's history. Many voters that are now undecided are going to ask themselves in November what it will profit the country to make a change.—Springfield Republican.

Roosevelt, The Clarifier.

The efforts of Senator Follette to keep Wisconsin Progressives from supporting Roosevelt has made this state "fighting ground" for the Roosevelt and Wilson adherents, with the Taft supporters cherishing a hope that in the struggle between the others they may be able to wriggle into first position. The coming appearance of Mr. Roosevelt in this state will undoubtedly help to clarify the political atmosphere, and if there is a strong movement of Roosevelt sentiment, as many confidently believe, the line-up will soon be clear and pronounced.—Oshkosh Northwestern.

Apostasy Result of Nagging.

The Times was as disappointed as any over McGovern's Bull Moose alliance. We feel that it was partly due to the nagging given him as a result of his action at the Chicago convention. He probably felt that if the La Follette leaders insisted that he could not and must not be considered a La Follette man, and the senator inclined to that opinion himself, the best thing to do was to go into a camp where he was welcome.—Itasca Times.

Record of Recklessness.

The Republican administration in Wisconsin has made a record for reckless and expensive legislation if nothing else. On all sides can be found representatives of state commissions, drawing fat salaries from the state treasury and working along lines which neither they nor anyone else understands and which can result in nothing but increased burdens in taxes for Badger residents.—Fond du Lac Reporter.

No Republican Candidate.

There is no Republican candidate for governor of Wisconsin. This fact must be borne in mind in all discussions relative to McGovern and Karel. No question of party loyalty is involved so far as Republican voters are concerned. They are free to size up the situation and vote in accordance with their best judgment.—Wausau Record Herald.

 An Editor's Soliloquy.

There are moments when the life of a country editor hardly seems worth living. Fleeting moments, perhaps, but intense moments, nevertheless. The Editor of the Sunfield Sentinel experienced one of these moments recently, according to the following, which is taken from his valuable paper.

"When a girl with a face like a cream puff marries a youth who never earned a dime outside a shooting gallery, the editor has to paint the bride as a radiant vision of blushing beauty and the groom as a 'rising young business man,' or else disappoint an expectant circle of delinquent subscribers. If the editor fails to spread a two-column obituary over a prominent citizen, who never paid a grocery bill outside of the justice court, he is liable to be waited upon by some two-fisted relative of the deceased with an infuriated air and a punch in either hand."

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. MEET THIS EVENING TO ORGANIZE TAFT CLUB FOR THE CITY

All Friends of the President Urged To Attend—Senator Thurston Here On Saturday Night.

At seven thirty this evening a Taft club will be organized to which the committee having charge of the affair, urge all young men, who favor the candidacy of the President to attend and enroll their names. The meeting will be held in the Library room of the Gazette and it is expected there will be a good attendance. The following is the call issued by a dozen enthusiastic supporters of President Taft:

To the voters of Janesville:—Feeling that steps should be taken to organize the voters of Janesville favoring the re-election of President Taft, the nominee of the National Republican convention, a meeting called for this evening at seven thirty at the Gazette office to which all voters favoring Mr. Taft's candidacy are urged to attend. At this time a permanent organization will be perfected, officers elected and arrangements completed for the address of Senator Thurston, who is to be in Janesville on Saturday evening.

Committee of Twelve. The gentlemen signing the call are all young republicans who feel that the campaign for the re-election of President Taft should be handled in some organized manner and are working with William Bray, of Oshkosh, who has charge of the Taft campaign for the National Republican Committee in Wisconsin.

SANITATION TOPIC DISCUSSED TODAY

Professor Buell in Morning Address To High School Students Talked On Sanitary Measures.

Sanitation was the subject discussed to the students at the high school this morning. Prof. Buell first spoke of the fact that the schools should be sanitary in every respect. From what one man who knows something of this subject remarked: "The Janesville High school is at present perfectly sanitary. The students are now requested to make it as much so as possible. One fact which will be remedied, is that the trees which face the building on the west, will soon be removed, so as more light may be let in the school rooms, thus giving a better chance to kill off germs, which might be in the school. Light is the main feature in sanitation, and much is being done to make this so."

A special meeting of the four literary societies has been called at the high school to see what the members had to say in regard to the resolutions which the Board of Education passed at their monthly meeting on Monday evening. Nothing in important changes were made, except that all names brought up by members should be handed to the critic or Prof. Buell for correction. The societies have the chance left of choosing their own members, which is thought to be a good resolution.

"VISION OF THE PROPHET" SUBJECT OF THE ADDRESS.

Dr. David Beaton to Deliver Talk at The Congregational Church This Evening.

This evening at seven thirty, Dr. David Beaton will deliver an address at the Congregational church, his subject being "Vision of the Prophet." The public are cordially invited to attend.

A special license to wed at once was secured by Fred De Pold and Miss Aldright.

One thing should be said of the Forum meeting which was held on Monday evening without a critic in charge. The president appointed Stanley Judd to act as critic for the evening, and throughout the meeting there could not be found any disorder, which goes to show that it was not necessary to have one. This meeting was thought by the old members to have been the best meeting in many years, and was the first the Forum ever held without an active critic in charge.

PUT IN PARTITIONS AT CENTRAL STATION

Improvements at Headquarters of West Side Fire Department Are Near Completion.

Within a very short time the improvements and modifications undertaken at the Central Fire Station will all have been completed. The second floor has been partitioned into rooms for different purposes and plastering and painting is about all that remains to be done. The fire alarm apparatus has been moved from the city hall and installed in a room on the second floor and the storage batteries have been placed in an adjoining room. By the end of this week all old wires will have been removed from the city hall and if the weather does not continue inclement, the remaining outside work will be finished.

The sleeping quarters of the firemen are now at the front of the building, where were formerly the offices of the city clerk and treasurer. All rooms open on the central hall. One of the rooms is to be used for an out bin, another for a storage room, and a third as a repair and tool shop. It is now nine weeks since the last box alarm was sent into the fire station, the longest period of its kind since 1891, when ten weeks passed without a big alarm. The last given was on Aug. 18.

DECLARES SOCIALISM IS BOUND TO COME

W. A. Jacobs, Former Candidate For Governor, Gives An Address To Janesville Audience.

That a socialistic state of society is inevitable and that steady progress is being made in that direction despite all opposition is the optimistic belief of W. A. Jacobs, former candidate for governor of Wisconsin on the Social Democratic ticket who last night addressed a Janesville audience in the open air at the Corn Exchange square. Mr. Jacobs was given a pleasing voice, a wide range of information, and a lucky manner of expressing his thoughts.

In support of his contention he instanced the successive establishment of the government ownership and management of the postal service, the public school system, postal savings banks, and public roads. He predicted the eventual public ownership of railways, telephone and telegraph lines, light and power systems, coal mines, forests, factories and stores.

PROGRESSIVE IDEAS CAUSE ADVANCEMENT

HERBERT S. BIGELOW OF CIN-CINNATI GIVES FINE ADDRESS
AT CONVENTION YESTER-DAY AFTERNOON.

PLACE NOMINATIONS

Nominating Committee Brings Up
Name of Mrs. Strathairn of Kaukauna as President—Mrs.
Leek of Beloit Named to Oppose Her.

One of the treats of the women's club convention came at the afternoon session yesterday when Herbert S. Bigelow of Cincinnati, Ohio, gave an interesting address on the topic, "A recasting of American Institutions." Among other things in point he said: "History is a struggle between those who stand still and those who go forward, between the progressive and the conservative. The function of the progressive is to establish a precedent for the conservative to follow."

"The conservative is the man who thinks the world is so good that he wants to keep it as it is. In that, however, he pays a great tribute to the progressive for the world of today was achieved not by the conservative but by the progressive of yesterday."

Conservative Ridiculous.
"The conservative is a very ridiculous person who makes against present improvements which he decries, all the old arguments were made against past improvements which he enjoys."

"The world has been revolutionized by a lesson in geography. The progressives have changed our opinion about the location of paradise. Our Eden is ahead of us. We believe in the ascent of man. Progress is the eternal law."

When in the "Servant in the House," the page boy saw Robert, the plumber, sitting at breakfast with the bishop, he declared that he "had never seen the likes of that before." He was "jiggered." The conservative is a person who is easily "jiggered." When anyone comes along with a fresh, robust thought about something it shatters the sanctity of his little world. Let a pioneer put a stick of dynamite under some old stump of ignorance and custom and your conservative will hold his ears. It seems like blasting the rock of ages."

Replete With Metaphor.

Mr. Bigelow's address was replete with expressive and brilliant metaphors and fairly bristled with clever epigrams. Although dealing with the conservative and the progressive, he did not touch the present day political field where one hears the words used so commonly. He rather applied the terms to the history of man in his various endeavors. Chiefly in the political which found its climax in America where liberty was first realized to its fullest extent, but also in the spiritual, intellectual and scientific realms. But the modern advantages are enjoyed, was the speaker's contention, only through the sacrifice and struggle which the progressive of former days endured against the forces of conservatism.

Mr. Bigelow is a fine orator and he held his audience in closest attention. He was interrupted time and again by burst of appreciative applause.

At the session Wednesday afternoon the reports of several committees were heard in addition to the business and the several addresses. Mrs. Arthur C. Neville of Green Bay, reported for the music committee and outlined very thoroughly the work which was being done and which should be continued by the various clubs along the lines of music.

Home Economics Cause.
Mrs. W. P. Leek of Beloit, until recently of Racine, reported for the Home Economics committee, recommending especially that housekeepers learn to dispense and spend the family income more judiciously. She introduced Mrs. Olat Guldin of Fort Wayne, Ind., national chairman of home economics, who gave a comprehensive outline of what the committee was doing and what it sought further to accomplish.

This department of the club work, she said, was concerned with the problems of civilization, the problems of sin and sickness and sorrow. The achievements of man are likely to receive the most attention while the development of his moral and intellectual nature, his actual condition of living and existing, is overlooked.

She took up the matter of the cost of living and showed the problems which confronted the families in the large cities who have to exist on $550 a year. "What have you women done to establish a minimum wage scale, or a cafeteria for working girls, or schools at which it is taught to cook and wash and take care of clothing?" asked the speaker. It was for the clubs, she said, to take up this work and urge in every way effective instruction which will reduce these difficulties.

District Vice-Presidents.
Preceding Mr. Bigelow's address the various districts held their caucuses and nominated their district vice-presidents as follows: First district, Mrs. D. O. Kinsman, Whitewater; second, Mrs. H. M. Knowlton, Waterloo; third, Mrs. Mary Connor, Windsor; fourth, Mrs. C. E. Estabrook, Milwaukee; fifth, no one named; sixth, Mrs. H. Richards, Oshkosh; seventh, Mrs. F. M. Hart, Tomah; eighth, Mrs. Anna Lathrop, Marshfield; ninth, Mrs. Louis Pinkley, Green Bay; tenth, Mrs. M. S. Frawley, Eau Claire; eleventh, Mrs. Thomas Barton, Ashland.

Mrs. John T. Martin of Green Bay, chairman of the nominating committee, announced the nominees for the state officers at the closing of the afternoon session yesterday. They are as follows: Mrs. J. A. Strathairn of Kaukauna for state federation president; first vice-president, Mrs. A. F. Roto, Monroe; second vice-president, Mrs. L. B. Harvey, Menomonie; recording secretary, Mrs. J. S. Wadsworth, River Falls; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Benj. Hooper, Oshkosh; treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Hobbins, Madison; auditor, Mrs. A. H. Schumaker, Eau Claire; general federation secretary, Mrs. W. H. Crosby of Racine, retiring president.

Nomination Expected.
Mrs. Martin stated that the nominating committee held two meetings during the week, one in April and one in September at the Hotel Elmer, Milwaukee. The nomination of Mrs. Strathairn was not a surprise as she was quite generally known that she was slated for this honor.

She was not destined to receive the federation honors without a contest, however, for after the report of the nominating committee, Mrs. A. C. Neville of Green Bay, placed in nomination for the office of federation president, Mrs. W. P. Leek of Beloit, until recently of Racine. In speaking of Mrs. Leek's preparation for the office Mrs. Neville emphasized her work at Port Washington, at Green Bay and lately at Racine, where she has been very close to the present federation head, Mrs. Crosby. In fact Mrs. Neville said, she had been in closest touch with all the federation work, both state and national. She had been Mrs. Crosby's first assistant at the San Francisco meeting and had been very earnest in the cause of the clubs. Furthermore she now represents a section of the state that has not been honored with a presidency.

Fight For Presidency.
Aroused by Mrs. Neville's laudation of her candidate, Mrs. Martin, chairman of the committee, and a close friend of the committee's choice, Mrs. Strathairn, immediately asked the chairman Mrs. Pease for an opportunity to speak in behalf of the committee candidate, if such a thing was in order. The chair ruled that such an address would hardly be in order from the committee chairman as the nominating board was supposed to be impartial. Consequently Mrs. Elmermann of Milwaukee, made a short appeal for Mrs. Strathairn as the next president pointing to the candidate's excellent record and recalling the ever willing spirit to assist any and all members of the federation in their duties.

Mrs. Leek, it is said is the progressive nominee of the convention, while Mrs. Strathairn will reply on the more conservative forces. Whether the two candidates will divide on the suffrage question was not known yesterday afternoon, but a fight was anticipated in the election on the convention floor today.

"SOUSA AND HIS BAND."
The programs presented by John Philip Sousa at the concert given by Sousa and his Band have always contained works by the great masters and the modern classic composers, and have thus been instructive as well as entertaining, for they have been performed by musicians of rare ability and experience, and in the most perfect manner. But a versatile Australian critic has something interesting to say in regard to the popularity of Sousa's own music.

Speaking of the Sousa Marches he says: "All these pieces have certain common features—they are, of course, markedly rhythmical; the melodies are bright and natural, and there is no attempt at polyphonic treatment. Their appeal is to the two ultimate foundations of music—definite rhythm and flowing melody—and hence they at once find appreciation amongst the vast majority of people who have not had the time or inclination to study music, but who, nevertheless, have their share in the common heritage of the race—the love of melody and rhythm. They have little in common with the modern works which seek for novelty in the abolition of all that is definite in key and rhythm, and in the substitution of weird progressions of unrelated notes for natural melody. And probably many of the disciples of what may be called the higher cult, are heartily ashamed of themselves because they can not help enjoying a Sousa March."

The concert here by Sousa and his Band, at the Myers Theatre, on Monday, Oct. 14, matinee only at 2:15, will be instructive and enjoyable, and the soloists, Miss Virginia Root, soprano, Miss Nicolene Zedeler, violinist, and Herbert L. Clarke, cornetist, are the same who have been received with great favor everywhere.

"KINDLING"
Rev. James Robert Smith, pastor of the Congregational church of Quincy, and one of the leading clergymen of Illinois, recently made the play, "Kindling" the subject of his Sunday morning sermon. He selected as his text Hosea 4:6 "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge." In the course of his address Dr. Smith said: "I do not often attend the theatre, principally because I cannot afford it financially, and also because there is much presented there which is not worth one's time and money. But I went to hear 'Kindling' because I have always been keenly interested in the problems discussed and presented in that way. I was not disappointed; but on the contrary so interested and moved that I felt it worth while to speak upon the theme." The minister then relates the story of the play and continues:

"The question has been raised as to the propriety of representing such a problem as this, with its intimate discussions of maternity, in a play before a mixed audience, many of whom are young people and have as yet thought little of such questions. But this, in my judgement, is the very reason it should be done. Our mistake lies precisely in the fact that we are raising up one generation after another who, like Mrs. Burke-Smith in the play, do not know of these problems which lie at the base of the frightful unrest and turmoil among what we call the lower classes of society. The prophet was right when he said 'My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge.' A high school girl in discussing the play with me said 'I did not suppose that such people cared in that way so much about their children being born under such conditions.' There was not a suggestion that she thought anything improper had been represented before us; and indeed there had not been. Be it remembered there was not a thing presented in this play which could by any stretch of the imagination, be classed as indecent. The only question is as to the propriety of discussing in so plain and bald a fashion the actual facts of life concerning the conditions which surround the birth of children. Our mistake has been in making a vague mystery of all this and assuring that it must not be discussed freely, openly and frankly with all classes of people, old and young. We are entering upon a new day wherein these questions must and shall be discussed in exactly this public fashion in the drama, the church, the home and the school."

This splendid play, "Kindling," will be presented here at Myers Theatre, Thursday, October 31.

LOOK WHO'S COMING.
President Taft or our genial Ex-President Theodore Roosevelt may not visit our city on their coming tour of the country but Harry J. Webster, the well known theatrical firm have arranged with the management of the Myers Theatre to bring their well known comedy drama, "A Millionaire Tramp," to our city on Sunday, Oct. 13, matinee and evening.

This time-tried production will be presented in its entirety, the best cast of characters ever put together to interpret a play, a new and special scenery befitting the locality the scenes are laid in, and a grand array of head line vaudeville acts will be presented during the action of the piece.

Cohan & Harris will inaugurate their campaign of Autumn productions at the Apollo theatre, Atlantic City, N. J., on July 8, when Frances Nordstrom's farce, "Room 44," will receive its initial presentation at the hands of a cast which includes Henry E. Dixey, William Boyd, Horace James, Lincoln Plummer, Andrew Buckley, Gerald Bidwell, Charles P. Glocker, Mrs. Stuart Robson, Edna Baker, Mrs. Katharine Stewart, Adelaide Hastings and Ada Gilman.

C. E. Moore, president of the training school board will address the student body Thursday upon the subject of the needs of the country school in Rock county.

The agricultural class is now supplied with copies of the noxious weed bulletins issued by the experimental station at Madison.

Miss Teresa McDonough of Edgerton, visited our school on Tuesday. Mrs. George Lovelace of Evansville, visited her daughter, Marcia, at the school on Monday.

This is the seventh week of our session, and there are three more weeks left in this quarter, which closes on Friday, Nov. 1st.

The training school was closed on Friday of last week to enable the authorities to fumigate the building. Every student is in school this week. On Monday evening of next week, a reception will be given in the training school rooms. A literary program will be presented and refreshments served. The old students will welcome the new ones to the school.

Self-Control Always Needed. There is nothing you need to cultivate so much as self-control. "Self-reverence, self-knowledge, self-control, these three alone lead life to sovereignty power." TURNKEY DENIES HE HORSEWHIPPED MAN

Turnkey at County Jail Says Facts Were Misrepresented in Story Published.

Denial was made today by Turnkey Philo Kemp to smuggle whiskey, beer and cigars to Hugo Waggoner, who was apprehended and given a horse-whipping outside the county jail. Waggoner is serving a six months term in the county jail, and according to the story, some of his friends had been supplying him with liquor and tobacco, the prisoner securing them by letting down a rope from a cell window. The real facts, according to Mr. Kemp, are that on Monday night he heard a whistle outside and while investigating, found a fishpole standing in the corner of the building at the rear, near where the cells are located. While he was experimenting to see if he could reach the upper cell windows with it, he saw a man coming from the barn with a gunnysack over his shoulder. The turnkey hid behind a tree nearby and when the man, whom the turnkey suspects was Eddie Ryan, came up, the officer hit him over the head with the pole. The prisoner fled, leaving behind the bag containing potatoes, onions and a link of sausage. These were appropriated by the turnkey, and the potatoes served to the prisoners for dinner the next day. Ryan is suspected as being the man with the bag, as the latter part of last week, when he went to visit Waggoner, he managed to sneak in with half a pint of whiskey, which the two disposed of.

Pimples Go-- Beauty Comes

You Just Can't Help Having a Beautiful Complexion If You Use Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

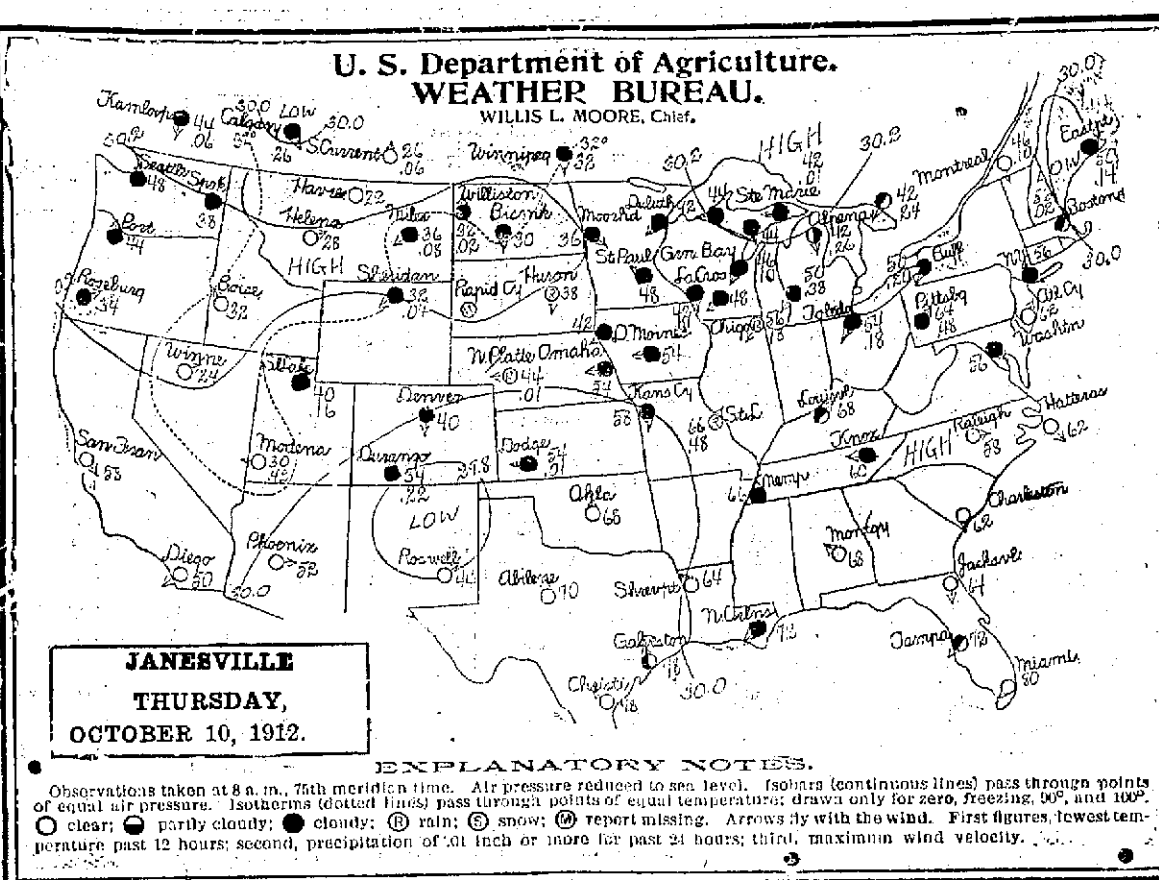

Pimples! Horrors! And what a wonderful change when they are all gone. Most everyone has noticed this.

Nowadays, when you see a real beauty, the chances are Stuart's Calcium Wafers wrought that wonderful change. It takes only a short time, even with very bad complexion—the kind that are disfigured with rash, eczema, boils, blotches and liver spots. Stuart's Calcium Wafers cause the skin pores to breathe out impurities. The lungs burn up a great amount, but Nature imposes upon the skin the larger burden. Every tick of the clock means work, work, work for these wonderful Wafers. And every instant new skin is forming, impurities become less and less, the pores are reinvigorated, and soon such a thing as a pimple, blackhead, or any other eruption is impossible. You marvel at the change.

The soft, rosy tint love-taps the cheeks; the neck, shoulders and arms show the health of youthful skin—in fact, you just can't help having a beautiful complexion if you use Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

They are put up in convenient form to carry with you, are very palatable, and are sold by druggists everywhere, at 50 cents a box.

There has been a cessation of movement of the atmospheric disturbances over the United States during the past 24 hours. The barometer is still low in the Southwest, and cloudiness and showers have continued on the plains and in the Rocky Mountain region. There have also been sprinkles in the Lake region and on the north Atlantic coast. Another of the series of barometric depressions that has been moving through Canada has made its appearance over British Columbia, and is attended by light rains.

DISCUSS TRAINING SCHOOL EXPENSES FOR THIS YEAR

Charles E. Moore, President of Board Has Conference With Superintendent Lowth.

Charles E. Moore, of Magnolia, president of the Training School Board, was in the city this afternoon and met with Superintendent Lowth to discuss the probable expenses of the training school for the ensuing year and means of obtaining the necessary funds. It is probable that the county will be asked to appropriate from $1500 to $1700 in addition to the money received from the state which pays two-thirds of the expense if the total does not exceed $3500. S. C. Burnham, Clerk of the Janesville Board of Education met with members of the Training School Board to consider the amount to be paid by the county for janitor and heating service. It is probable that the amount will be the same as last year, $650. Few changes in the building will have to be made. A small room may be added and the cloak room used for physical culture work.

"STEVE" HAS TOO MANY JANESVILLE FRIENDS

Went to Show Him a Good Time With His Own Money When He Comes To Town—Prefers to Stay Away.

That his Janesville friends were too numerous and always wanted to show him a good time with his own money when he came to town, was the complaint made by "Steve" Caniff who was arraigned before Judge Fifield on a charge of intoxication this morning. "Steve" has been on such good behavior for a long time that the Judge adjourned his case for two days so as to give him an opportunity to go out in the country and start to work. He has been working at Fort Atkinson for some time.

Henry Carlson, an old offender, was given his choice between a fine of $8 and costs or fifteen days in jail, and chose the latter. Jack Cronin was presented the alternative of $25 and costs, but went down to Ransoms' hotel for six days. He was picked up near the St. Paul round house and his face was well blackened with soot.

Ability. Two women are able to say more in an afternoon than a man can learn in a lifetime.

SURELY TAKE "SYRUP OF FIGS" IF HEADACHY, BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED

SWEETENS YOUR STOMACH, CLEARS YOUR HEAD AND THOROUGHLY CLEANSSES YOUR LIVER AND 30 FEET OF BOWELS OF SOUR BILE, FOUL GASES AND CLOGGED-UP WASTE.

All those days when you feel miserable, headachy, bilious and dull are due to torpid liver and sluggish bowels. The days when your stomach is sour and full of gas, when you have indigestion; the nights when your nerves twitch and you are restless and can't sleep could be avoided with a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs. Isn't it foolish to be distressed when there is such a pleasant way to overcome it?

Give your inactive liver and ten yards of waste-clogged bowels a thorough cleansing this time. Put an end to constipation. Take a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs tonight, sure, and just see for yourself by morning, how gently but thoroughly all the sour bile, undigested fermenting food and clogged up waste matter is moved on and out of your system—no nausea—no gripping—no weakness. You simply can't have your liver inactive and your thirty feet of bowels constipated with sour, decaying waste matter and feel well. The need of a laxative is a natural need, but with delicious Syrup of Figs you are not drugging yourself. Being composed entirely of succulent figs, senna and aromatics it can not injure. Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna." Refuse, with scorn, any of the so-called Fig Syrup imitations. They are meant to deceive you. Look on the label. The genuine, old reliable, bears the name, California Fig Syrup Company.

Eyes Demand Repose.

Many people cannot remain unoccupied, and in their moments of leisure hasten to seize a book or a piece of embroidery. These are undoubtedly excellent means of distraction, but they are fatiguing for the eyes, upon which they impose continuous work without a break. One must know how to repose the eyes just as one considers it quite natural to rest the muscles after a fatiguing walk.

Smallest Mammal.

The smallest of all mammals are the shrew—nocturnal, mouse-like creatures, that hunt for worms and insects in woods and meadows. An eggshell would make a commodious barn for a mother and her little ones.

BEHIND MOVEMENT TO PAY CONVICTS

Mayme Gerhuc.

Miss Layme Gerhuc, the clever little dancer with Miss Kitty Gordon in "The Enchantress" this season, is behind a movement to compensate convicts for their labor. "It is barbarous and un-American to give a convict after he has labored a number of years a paltry $5, and a prison-made suit of clothes," declares Miss Gerhuc. "We must have convict labor for no man or woman can remain idle for any great length of time. But why not pay for the work the prisoners do? The money should be given to those dependent on the prisoner, for often these dependent ones are in want. Paying them I believe would have a tendency to lessen crime."

CHATS WITH THINKING WOMEN

by Barbara Boyd

The Boarding-House Young Man

ABELL tinkled and the boarders hurried into the dining room. Not all could be seated, for the boarding house was popular and many people from the neighborhood came in for their meals. Those who couldn't find places waited in the front room, or parlor, into which, however, the dining room table partly extended. For all accommodations possible were given by the busy landlady to her guests.

Among the first comers were a bald headed, elderly gentleman, two rather young and pretty girls, three middle-aged women, and a rather pleasant looking, thin young man, with an incipient mustache. As is customary when a party of Americans of this sort get together, there was much good humor, earnest attempts to be funny and a general air of gaiety and flippancy. The young man and his mustache, and the two pretty girls, were the centre of attraction.

But over it all hung the feeling of haste, of hurry, to get done and out of the way of those waiting, of a mere surface interest in each other, and in the affairs of each.

How different from the atmosphere of the real home, from the dining table where the family gather and eat leisurely the final meal of the day, where the tastes of each have been lovingly catered to, where genuine interest in the welfare of each reigns!

And how much that young man, for instance, is missing in having to live in the boarding-house atmosphere, instead of being the head of his own home!

But suppose he does want to marry, what is the prospect that faces him?

The girl he would choose for his wife would probably be a business girl, for his associates undoubtedly lie in this class.

What preparation or training has a business girl for the duties of a wife and mother?

How many business girls can step successfully from a counter or desk or typewriter to the management of a home? Most of them could as easily take dictation without having studied stenography, as run a home efficiently from the start, without any knowledge of housekeeping.

Yet as the young man earns but fifteen dollars, perhaps twenty dollars, a week there must be experience, skilled housekeeping, or the little home will come to financial disaster.

So what is there for this young man to do but to remain in the boarding-house and a bachelor?

Yet he would be happier and a better citizen, and some girl a happier and more useful woman, if they were in a charming and well managed little home of their own.

Yet as things are today, the odds are so in favor of the matrimonial bark of such a couple coming to grief, that many a young man living aimlessly and superficially in a boarding house is afraid to set forth on the matrimonial voyage. And as things are today, he is wise to consider very carefully before making the venture.

But things ought to be different. A business experience is good for a girl. But the business college course should not cut out the home training course. These two should go hand in hand. Since the making and managing of a home is still in woman's hands, some training for this work should be a part of every girl's education. It would do her no harm, and the time might come, when it would be her most valued possession.

The Kitchen Cabinet

IT HAS been shrewdly said that, when men abuse us, we should suspect ourselves; and when they praise us, them. It is a rare instance of virtue to despise censure which we do deserve, and still more rare to despise praise which we do. But that integrity that lives only on opinion would starve without it.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

To bake pears, remove the stem with an apple corer, taking out as much of the core as possible without piercing the pear through to the blossom end. Then in the cavity left, fill with sugar, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and a bit of butter. Pour water around them and bake in a slow oven until tender.

Baked Quinces.—Wipe, quarter and core eight quinces. Put in a baking dish, sprinkle with three-fourths of a cup of sugar, add a cup and a half of water; cover and cook until soft in a slow oven.

Green apples, especially the Duchess variety, make most delicious spiced apples, which are nice served with meats in the winter.

Raspberry Syrup.—Cherry, currant and, in fact, almost any fruit syrup which is good flavor is an addition to the fruit closet, to be used to flavor sauces for puddings, ice creams and frozen desserts.

Pineapple Bavarian Cream.—Soak a half box of gelatine in half a cup of cold water. Heat a can of grated pineapple, add a half cup of sugar, a tablespoonful of lemon juice and the soaked gelatine; chill, stirring constantly, when it begins to thicken. Fold in the whip from three cups of cream, mold and chill.

Orange and Lemon Sherbet.—Take the juice of two oranges, two lemons, one cup of sugar and two plates of this cream. Freeze.

Strawberry Sponge.—Add a tablespoonful and a third of gelatine to a third of a cup of cold water. When softened, add a third of a cup of boiling water, a cup of sugar, a tablespoonful of lemon juice, a cup of strawberry juice. Mix all together, and when it begins to thicken add the whites of three eggs and the whip from three cups of cream. Fill a mold and chill.

Nellie Maxwell.

Fewer Willing to Sell Their Hair.—Owing to the fact that the young countrymen of France, under the spreading influence of the cities, are becoming more particular as to the appearance of the girls they "walk out" with, peasant girls are becoming less and less willing to sell their rich tresses to hair dealers. At the great Limoges hair fair, held in the market place of the city, there were fewer dealers present than ever before. The supply of hair is falling and prices ranged from $1.50 to $1.85 a pound.

Value of a Smile.
A pretty smile may make one's fortune. Few women realize the value of a smile. Most smiles are useless. The smile that counts is one that charms men, and that will secure favors here and service there, and go twice as far as a tip or a command. This smile has radiance, is produced by the eyes as well as by the lips, and, above all, is never mechanical.—Strand Magazine.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

Hersietta D. Grauel

PLAIN pudding may pass muster, but a plain pie never. Pies without rich flaky crusts are not worth eating and now that the stigma of unwholesomeness has been removed from our national dessert, by those wise in such matters, the full quota of shortening along with our best efforts may be put into the making of rich pastry without our feeling that we are inviting dyspepsia.

A good memory, practice, and dexterity will produce flaky pastry from almost any pie crust mixture, for it is the method of mixing the ingredients, that gives the crispness so desirable. First work a fourth of a cup of shortening into two cups of pastry flour, add a teaspoon of salt and enough cold water to make a stiff dough. Roll out and dot over with bits of butter, dredge lightly with flour, fold over and roll again, continue this process until you have worked in two-thirds of a cup of butter. Always roll away from you with a light, firm touch.

At the final rolling work the pastry as thin as possible and to prevent the pies bursting wet the rims of the lower crust and press the upper crust firmly upon it.

If the lower crust is baked slightly before the filling is put in, it will not get soggy.

Remove the pies from their pans as soon as they are baked to prevent their sweating in the bottoms. Wire racks are sold for cooling pies upon and are practical.

A light paste may be made by adding the white of egg to the pastry mixture, this is added with the butter, and not with the water as so many suppose.

Beat the egg white stiff, get on the bits of butter, spread on a coating of the egg, dredge with flour then roll out as usual.

A paste for fancy puffs, and tarts, that is rich and a variation from the ordinary is made by German cooks, who sift a pint of best flour onto the molding board, and work into it a half a pound of sugar and a half a pound of butter, the grated rind of a lemon and the yolks of two eggs well beaten. If the mixture is very dry add a little water.

Mix with a knife; roll, thin and bake in shells, or strips, or sheets. This has the merit of keeping in a crock or cake box, for several weeks. The fine yellow glaze given to pastry by professionals is made with beaten egg yolk laid on the crust before it is baked; a little milk may be mixed with the egg.

Fruit and fancy tarts that are to be fed before they are used, need only a mixture of sugar and water; but the uncooked icing is best for home use. Mix powdered sugar and whites of eggs to a consistency that will spread, easily and decorate the baking when it is almost cold.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

Edna K. Woolley

The Woman of Thirty smiled at her impetuous young friend.

"I might reply like the old darkey that I deny the allegation and defy the alligator," said she, "but on second thought I think perhaps I had better enlighten your ignorance. I am about to try a new sort of beauty stunt. Did you ever hear of a French face laundry?"

"Almost every other kind of a French toilet preparation, but not that."

"Stupid! I am not talking about a cold cream or face powder, but a new kind of beauty shop. Laura, Van Swell has just got back from Paris and she told me all about it this afternoon. It seems that at these places they iron the wrinkles out of faces just as a laundress smooths creases out of clothing. She said she had tried it and—now what are you giggling about? You look as if you didn't believe it."

"I don't wish to say as the lady's tellin' lies," quoted the girl with a very good imitation of the Coster

LAUNDRY YOUR FACE: IT'S LATEST BEAUTY STUNT.

"What are you heating an iron for at this time of night?" asked the Average Girl as he gazed at her friend's new electric contrivance, which occupied a prominent position on the center of the living room table.

"I always thought you were a good housekeeper," she went on. "A flat-iron in the parlor! Whoever heard of such a thing? You're always giving me points—now let me give you one, or rather two. The first is that the kitchen is the place for laundry work and the second is the old rhyme:

"When the sun is in the west
Lazy folks work the best."

THE HIGHEST DUTY.

WE WERE talking about a certain young woman in our neighborhood who is notorious for the sarcastic speeches with which she frequently flays everyone with whom she comes in contact. Even her mother, whom she adores and for whom she cannot do too much, is not safe from her cruel tongue when she is in a sarcastic mood, and is frequently wounded to tears by the sharp things her daughter says.

"Of course, it's too bad she should talk to her mother so," said Molly, the little stenographer lady, "but still, think of all she does for her. Why last summer Emily went without any summer suit so that she could send her mother on a vacation. I guess she does enough to make up for her bad temper."

"Do you think so, Molly?" said the lady who always knows something. "Well, I don't. Of course, it's splendid for her to deny herself for her mother's sake, but I don't think it's enough if she can't be pleasant, too. I've thought about that subject a great deal, and I've come to the conclusion that it doesn't matter how much you do for anyone, if you can't be pleasant to them too you haven't done enough."

The lady's words impressed me so deeply that I bring them to you. It seems to me that they are a whole philosophy of life—"It doesn't matter how much you do for anyone, if you can't be pleasant to them too you haven't done enough."

Neither gifts nor services will ever take the place of simple kindness and livableness.

I once knew a woman who had two sons; one son was devoted to her and was always doing something for her, but was quick tempered and hard to live with; the other son was completely selfish and self-absorbed, but always sweet tempered and good company. And although she was grateful to the generous son and depended upon him, she really loved the selfish, livable one the better.

"To be happy and to make others so," a wise woman tells me is her ideal of a successful life. It is mine also. And I know that he who tries to substitute services and self-denial for kindness and the quality of being good to live with will never accomplish this ideal. He will probably fail in making himself happy and he will surely fail in making others so.

Now do not think that I am depreciating the beauty of self-denial. Indeed no. The world needs generosity and self-denial very badly, but it also needs livableness. Be as generous and self-denying as you know how but remember also, "It doesn't matter how much you do for anyone, if you can't be pleasant to them too you haven't done enough."

It is not a case of substitution at all. It is just a case of "these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone."

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am a girl of 16 and have been keeping company with a nice boy of 17. My parents do not object, but my big brother says it is not nice for a girl so young to go with a boy. I have been going with boys for two years and I like this one best of all. He used to go with a girl who lives near me and she tells me unkind things about him. I tell him and he says not to pay any attention to her, but it makes me feel bad. He has asked me to go places with him, but I do not like to go unless my chum and his chum go too. Please give me some advice.

SUNSHINE.
Dear little sunshine, your big brother is right. He doesn't like to see his little sister spoiled by being pawed over by all sorts of fellows. You don't know what love is and you ought to keep yourself sweet and unspoiled for the man you will some day marry. Be good friends with the boys, but don't let any of them be mushy or monopolize you. Don't go alone with any boy anywhere. You are quite right in wishing your chums to go along. Forget what the other girls tell you, but don't give anybody a chance to say anything of you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1) Is it proper for an engaged girl to stand and talk with fellows she does not know after dancing? (2) Has an engaged girl a right to attend parties and take interest in kissing games? (3) Should a fellow get angry because the girl he is engaged to dances with a fellow to whom she objects? (4) Is two years too long for an engagement?

(1) I shouldn't think she would talk with men she doesn't know anyway. (2) Not if her fiancé objects. (3) You would probably feel hurt and get angry if you were in stead of "but she's 'andlin' the truth very carefully." The woman shook her head emphatically.

"Don't you fool yourself! It's no rosy dream I'm telling you, but hard facts. Why, Laura looks ten years younger and her cheeks are like a rose. And, best of all, she told me just how to do it, and I was getting ready to try it as you came in."

"Go ahead, don't mind me," said the girl. "I'd like to watch the stunt."

"The first thing is to fold a thick towel in a square. A Turkish towel is the best to use for this purpose. Dip this into water as hot as you can bear it and hold it against the face just below the eyes in the way the harem ladies wear their veils. Keep it there until it is almost cool, and then dip it in again, squeezing only to prevent dripping. Do this three times and then take your electric iron, which you must have cool enough so that you can put the palm of your hand against it without scorching or burning it in the least. Smooth the cheeks with this, pressing the flesh upward gently, until you can bear the heat no longer. Now put some cold cream on the face and with the tips of the fingers lightly spat or strike it in.

"The cream should be allowed to sink into the pores for at least five minutes, and then it is wiped off and the face bathed in very cold water, which ends the operation," said the woman as she went into the adjoining room to complete the process she has just described.

"You certainly do look healthy, to say the least," remarked the girl as her friend returned in a few minutes with a rosy face. "But you must remember," she continued, "that beauty is only skin deep."

"That's deep enough for me," said the woman. "I'm no cannibal."

Forget what the other girls tell you, but don't give anybody a chance to say anything of you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1) Is it proper for an engaged girl to stand and talk with fellows she does not know after dancing? (2) Has an engaged girl a right to attend parties and take interest in kissing games? (3) Should a fellow get angry because the girl he is engaged to dances with a fellow to whom she objects? (4) Is two years too long for an engagement?

(1) I shouldn't think she would talk with men she doesn't know anyway. (2) Not if her fiancé objects. (3) You would probably feel hurt and get angry if you were in stead of "but she's 'andlin' the truth very carefully." The woman shook her head emphatically.

AGED RESIDENT OF
ROCK COUNTY DEAD

Mrs. Joseph Williams of Afton Passed Away After Home in Afton Early This Morning.

Afton, Oct. 10.—Mrs. Joseph Williams, aged 76, for nearly forty years a resident of Rock county, passed away at four o'clock this morning at her home in Afton. She had been confined to her bed most of the time for about a year, and her death was brought on by old age and the effects of a stroke of paralysis which she suffered in the spring.

Mrs. Williams was born December 20, 1835 in Wilkesbarre, Pa., and came to Wisconsin to Rock county about forty years ago. She was twice married, her first husband dying many years ago. Her marriage to Mr. Williams occurred in Pennsylvania, shortly before the time they came to Wisconsin. For a few years they resided three miles south of Afton, but in 1870 moved into the village. Besides her husband, Mrs. Williams is survived by two sons, Eugene Barry of Janesville, and Scott Barry of the town of Center, and one daughter, Mrs. C. Wilson of Wisner, Neb., who came here ten days ago to care for her mother.

The deceased was a woman dearly beloved in the community. She was of a kindly disposition and won to herself many friends. Her loss is deeply mourned. Funeral services will be held at one o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Baptist church at Afton, and Rev. Paul Roth of Beloit will officiate. Interment will be made in the cemetery at Afton.

ADJOURNED HEARING
BERGSTERMAN CASE

TESTIMONY NOT ALL COMPLETED—FATHER OF GIRL RELEASED FROM JAIL.

CORPSE WAS EXHUMED

For Further Examination—Boys Drank In Knipp's Saloon Night Crime Was Committed.

Interesting testimony was brought out at the hearing in the Bergsterman murder trial yesterday of the custom of many saloon proprietors to sell liquor to minors. It developed that the two prisoners, Berger and Meyer, had spent the best part of the evening of Sept. 30, drinking in the saloon conducted by William Knipp. It also developed that one of the witnesses had spent the same evening playing "rum" for money in the cigar store of Delaney and Murphy. As all three are minors it is probable some radical action will be taken by the authorities.

Exhume Body.

At the order of the court, the body of Matilda Bergsterman, for whose murder Edward Meyer and Harry Berger are held, was exhumed late yesterday afternoon, and a further examination was made by Dr. E. W. Edden and J. W. Gibson, who performed the autopsy on the body on Oct. 1. This action was taken in order to clear up some technical points brought out in the testimony taken yesterday. Further testimony by the physicians will probably be given when the hearing is resumed, on Saturday morning.

An Adjournment.

Adjournment to Saturday morning at eight o'clock was taken at five o'clock yesterday afternoon in the preliminary hearing of Harry F. Berger and Edward Meyer, the two young men charged with the murder of Matilda Bergsterman. All the witnesses the state was able to produce yesterday were examined at the hearing, but at the request of District Attorney Dunwiddie, who stated that he wished to summon another witness, postponement was taken, Saturday morning being the earliest convenient time for Attorney Nolan, who departed last evening for La Crosse to appear in the federal court in the case against his client, Harry Davenport. Provision was made, however, that should Mr. Nolan be unable to appear Saturday morning, the case should be adjourned to the first of next week.

Bergsterman Freed.

After some discussion as to whether or not Fred Bergsterman, father of the woman slain, should be released from jail, District Attorney Dunwiddie, at the solicitation of Mr. Nolan, who stated it would not be right to hold the man longer, made a motion that the charges of murder against Bergsterman be dismissed. The motion was granted by the court, but Bergsterman was held under $200 bond for his appearance as a witness Saturday morning, and was released on his own recognizance, with the understanding that if he became intoxicated, the court would order him remanded to jail.

Further Testimony.

In the examination of Meyer and Berger yesterday afternoon, Bennie Bergsterman, brother of Matilda Bergsterman, was called to the stand to testify as to his knowledge of his sister's character, her habits and other matters which might throw light on the case.

Eugene Roessling, of the firm of Roessling Bros., testified as to the appearance of Bergsterman at his home on the night of the alleged murder, at about half past twelve o'clock. Additional evidence by Mr. Roessling, not given in his testimony at the inquest, was that previously about twelve o'clock, he had seen two men taking a drunken man home, and that he had thought Meyer was one of the two assisting the drunken man. When he questioned Meyer the next morning, the witness stated that Meyer had told him that he and "Stu" Berger had taken Bergsterman home, but he requested Mr. Roessling to say nothing because of what had developed that morning. Mr. Roessling said he advised Meyer to "make a clean breast of it," as the facts would undoubtedly be found out eventually.

The investigation of the woman's death at the Bergsterman home, by Chief of Police Appleby were reviewed by the chief on the stand yesterday afternoon.

Heard Woman's Cries.

That he had heard cries which apparently came from across the river in the direction of the home of Samuel Grundy, was the substance of the testimony offered by Fred Keel at the examination yesterday. Mr. Keel stated that about twelve o'clock on the night of September 30, he with his wife had been returning from the residence of his son at the corner of Academy street and Washington avenue, and that just after they left his son's home for their home on Park avenue, they had been startled by a cry from someone evidently in danger. He said that he wanted to go to find out what the trouble was, but his wife feared to go home alone. Later just before they entered their home the crying had been repeated. The voice he said, had sounded to him like that of a woman, and that he was not a half mile from the Bergsterman home when he heard it. The night had been clear and still, he said.

Boys Secured Liquor.

Ed Blora, 18, who resides on Grand avenue a short distance from the Bergsterman home, testified to spending most of the evening of September 30, with the defendants. He stated that he had met them and gone down town with them, and had remained with them until about eleven o'clock. According to his testimony, the three had gone first to the Knipp saloon on West Milwaukee street, and about nine o'clock to a moving picture show, returning to the saloon and remaining until about eleven o'clock. He said that he had gone home alone, as when the proprietor told them it was closing time, he had gone out ahead, while the defendants remained in the saloon. Meyer and Berger were drinking beer, he said, and he had been drinking white pop and taking cigars. He spent about two dollars for drinks and Berger and Meyer had bought about as many drinks. As he, his companions, he said, were not intoxicated, "just feeling good."

Fred Bergsterman was the last witness put on the stand. His testimony was practically a repetition of the story told when he was first arrested. He related what he had done on the day of the alleged murder, and told of spending part of the afternoon and evening in two saloons on River street. He declared that he had gone home alone that night after eleven o'clock, going by way of Milwaukee street to the Five Points and down Center Avenue. He reiterated his statement that he had met two men on the right hand side of the bridge, who told him to go home, his Tillie was killed.

He had met them he stated later in his testimony at the corner of Grand avenue. Because of short-sightedness, he said he could not tell who they were, and had thought they were trying to bother him. He was unable to state positively whether or not Meyer and Berger were the two fellows, but said they might have been the ones he saw. Meyer, he said, had delivered groceries at his home, but he didn't know if either of the boys had ever been at the house at any other time.

SIDEWALK KETCHES.

HANDS.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

The hand is a prehensile article which is used to impart the lodge grip, after which it is employed to touch some trustful brother for the price of a meal ticket. The correct use of the secret society clutch has enabled many a man to maintain a $5,000 front on a $700 income.

The hand is a very deceptive piece of mechanism, and can turn from feeling potatoes to blamming the door in the face of a book agent. Some hands are small and delicate and are not allowed to do anything but tickle the piano, while mother gets dinner. Others are built on the generous lines of a meat platter, and protrude nervously from the cuffs of a full dress coat.

The human hand, like the hand of the Barbadoes ape, is equipped with pink fingernails, which are redecorated every few days by an insouciant female mechanic known as a manicure and then hung carelessly over the back of a chair. The manicure is a perfumed person in a high social who appears quite sociable from a distance, but who treats the hand of a customer as she would any other piece of furniture.

The hand is quicker than the eye, especially at the county fair, where it is used to disconcert the opinion-mongered boob with the aid of the three-shell game. It is also used with considerable success in concealing an aceful under the table.

The most restless form of hand is that of the top-shifter, who wanders from counter to counter with submarine pockets and an innocent look. An interesting sight is an animated debate between two deaf mutes, who can talk on their hands without keeping anybody awake.

Some people have made a close study of the hand, and when entrusted with a $2 bill in advance can tell at once whether the patron is going to live a happy, care-free life or get married. For $2 additional the average palmist will fix it either way.

The old-fashioned maternal hand was one which knew when it was time to substitute a sound spanking for an appeal to the affections. If there were more hands of this description there would be less whole-souled devility in the eighth grade.

How to Make Better Cough Syrup than
You Can Buy

A Family Supply, Saving 50-100%
Fully Guaranteed.

A full pint of cough syrup—as much as you could buy for $2.50—can easily be made at home. You will find nothing that takes hold of an obstinate cough more quickly, usually ending it inside of 24 hours. Excellent, too, for croup, whooping cough, sore lungs, asthma, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with 1/2 pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This is just laxative enough to help cure a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, which is usually upset by a cough. The taste is pleasant.

The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in quaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe is now used by thousands of housewives throughout the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equalled.

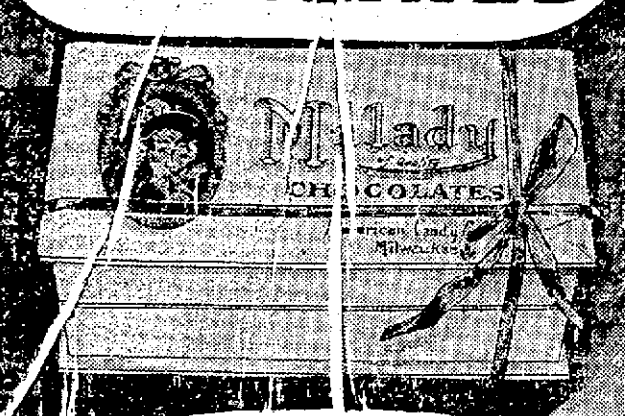

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

The Chronicles of Addington Peace

By B. FLETCHER ROBINSON
Author with H. Conan Doyle of 'The Hound of the Baskervilles'

The shadows leapt upon us as Peace extinguished the light he carried. The great window alone was luminous with the faint starlight that showed the tracery of its ancient stonework; for the rest, the darkness hedged us about in impenetrable barriers. Side by side, we stood by the wall in which we knew the secret entrance must exist.

It may have been ten minutes or more when from the distance—somewhere below our feet, or so it seemed to me—there came the faint echo of a closing door. It was only in such cold silence that we could have heard it. The time ticked on. Suddenly, upon the black of the floor, there shone a thin reflection like the slash of a sword—a reflection that grew into a broad gush of light as the sliding panel in the wall, six feet from where we stood, rose to the full opening. There followed another pause, during which I could see Peace draw himself together as if for some unusual exertion.

A shadow darkened the reflection on the floor, and a head came peering out. The light but half displayed the face, but I could see that the teeth were bare and glistening, like those of a man in some deadly expectation. The next moment he stepped across the threshold.

With a spring like the rush of a terrier, Addington Peace was upon him, driving him off his balance with the impact of the blow. One loud scream he gave that went echoing away into the distant corridors. But before I could reach them, the little detective had him down, though he still kicked viciously until I lent a hand. The click of the handcuffs on his wrists ended the matter.

It was Ford's valet, the man Jackson. We were not long by ourselves. I heard a quick patter of naked feet from behind us, and Harbord, the secretary, came running up, swinging a heavy stick in his hand. Ransom followed close at the edge of the patch of light in which we were; starting from us to the gaping hole in the wall.

"What in thunder are you about?" cried the manager.

"Finding a solution to your problem," said the little detective, getting to his feet. "Perhaps, gentlemen, you will be good enough to follow me."

He stepped through the opening in the wall, and lifted the candle which the valet had placed on the floor whilst he was raising the panel from within. By its light I could see the first steps of a flight which led down into darkness.

"We will take Jackson with us," he continued. "Keep an eye on him, Mr. Phillips, if you please."

It was a strange procession that we made. First Peace, with the candle, then Ransom, with the valet following, while I and Harbord brought up the rear. We descended some thirty steps, formed in the thickness of the wall, opened a heavy door, and so found ourselves in a narrow, oblong, some twelve feet long by seven broad. Upon a mattress at the further end lay a man, gagged and bound. As the light fell upon his features Ransom sprang forward, shouting his name.

"Silas Ford, by thunder!"

With eager fingers we loosened the gag and cut the ropes that bound his wrists. He sat up, turning his long, thin face from one to the other of us as he stretched the cramp from his limbs.

"Thank you, gentlemen," said he. "Well, Ransom, how are things?"

"Bad, sir; but it's not too late."

He nodded his head, passing his hands through his hair with a quick, nervous movement.

"You've caught my clever friend, I see. Kindly go through his pockets, will you? He has something I must ask him to return to me."

We found it in Jackson's pocket-book—a cheque, antedated a week, for five thousand pounds, with a covering letter to the manager of the bank. Ford took the bit of stamped paper.

retary had evidently followed some man who had disappeared mysteriously. Could there be the entrance to a secret chamber in that corridor? That would explain the mystification of Harbord as well as the disappearance of Silas Ford. If so Harbord was not involved.

"If Ford were held a prisoner he must be fed. His gaoler must of necessity remain in the house. But the trap I set in the suggested journey to town was an experiment singularly unsuccessful, for all the three men I desired to test refused. However, if I were right about the secret chamber I could checkmate the blackmailer by keeping a watch on him from your room, which commanded the line of communications. But Jackson was clever enough to leave his victimizing to the night-time. I scattered the flour to try the result of that ancient trick. It was successful! That is all. Do you follow me?"

"Yes," said I; "but how did Jackson come to know the secret hiding-place?"

"He has long been a servant of the house. You had better ask his old master."

MR CORAN'S ELECTION

Ten o'clock. Big Ben left no doubt about it; for the giant clock in the tower of the house of parliament is a noisy neighbor. The last stroke thundered out as I climbed the stairs that led to the modest lodging of Inspector Addington Peace, and silence had fallen as I knocked at his door. I was alone that night and in the mood when a man escapes from himself to seek a friend.

I found the little detective at his open window, staring across the tumbled roofs to where the abbey towers rose under the waning moon. The evening breeze came creeping up with the tide blew gratefully after the heat of the July day. He glanced at me over his shoulder with a short nod of welcome.

"Even the police grow sentimental on such a night," I suggested. "Or philosophic?"

"The reflections of Diogenes the detective, or the Aristotle of Scotland Yard," I laughed. "May I inquire as to the cause of such profound thought?"

He held out a slip of paper, which I took and carried to the central lamp. It was an old newspaper clipping, stained and blurred, relating in six lines how James Coran, described as a student, had been charged at the Bow street police-court with drunkenness, followed by an aggravated assault on the constable who arrested him. He was fined three pounds or seven days. That was all.

"Not a subject of earth-shaking importance," I said.

"No; but it has proved a sufficient excuse for blackmail."

"Then the victim is a fool," I answered hotly. "Why, from the look of the paper the affair must have taken place a dozen years ago."

"Thirty-two years this month."

"Which means that the notorious student is now a man of over sixty."

James Coran has gone down the hill, the past can't hurt him now; if he has led a respectable life, surely he can afford to neglect the scamp who threatens to rake up so mild a scandal. Blackmail for a spree back in the seventies—it's ridiculous, inspector."

The little man stood with his hands behind him and his head on one side, watching me with benevolent amusement. When he spoke it was in the ponderous manner which he sometimes assumed, a manner that always reminded me of a university professor explaining their deplorable errors to his class.

"Mr. James Coran is a respectable middle-class widower who lives with his sister Rebecca and two daughters in the little town of Brendon, twenty-four miles from London. He arrives at the 'Fashionable Clothing Company'—his London establishment in Oxford street—at ten o'clock in the morning, leaving for home by the 5.18. In his spare time he performs a variety of public duties at Brendon. He is a recognized authority on drains, and has produced a pamphlet on dust carts. As a temperance orator his local reputation is great, and his labors in the cause of various benevolent associations have been suitably commemorated by a presentation clock, three inkstands, and a silver tankard. His interests are limited to Brendon and Oxford street; of world movements he thinks no more than the caterpillar on a leaf considers the general welfare of the cabbage patch. Please remember the facts, Mr. Phillips, in consideration of his case."

"Six months ago an envelope arrived at his house with two inclosures. One was the newspaper clipping you hold; the other a letter denouncing him as a hypocrite, and warning him that unless the sum of twenty pounds was placed in the locker of a little summer house at the end of his garden the writer would expose him to all Brendon in his true character as a convicted drunkard."

"Coran was in despair. He had imagined his unfortunate spree long forgotten. Not even his own relatives were aware of it. He was trying for a seat on the county council; the election was due in a month, and he relied for his success on the support of the temperance party. As an election weapon the old scandal could be used with striking effect. So he paid—as many a better man has been fool enough to do under like circumstances.

Oh, How I Itched!

What long nerve-racking days of constant torture—what sleepless nights of terrible agony—itch—itch—itch, constant itch, until it seemed that I must tear out my very skin—then—

Instant relief—my skin cooled, soothed and healed.

The very first drops of D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema stopped that awful itch instantly; yes, the very moment D.D.D. touched the burning skin the torture ceased. A 25c bottle proves it.

D.D.D. has been known for years as the only absolutely reliable eczema remedy, for it washes away the disease germs and leaves the skin as clear and healthy as that of a child.

remedy, for it washes away the disease germs and leaves the skin as clear and healthy as that of a child.

All other druggists have D.D.D. Prescription—go to them if you can't come to us—but don't accept some big profit substitute.

But if you come to our store, we are so certain of what D.D.D. will do for you that we offer you a full size bottle on this guarantee—If you do not find that it takes away the itch AT ONCE, it costs you not a cent.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, October 10, 1872.—The Christ church social union will resume their weekly sociables on Tuesday evening next, at Apollo hall, Methodist block. The usual order of exercises, readings, recitations, music and dancing will be carried out. As these entertainments have in the past, figured among the most attractive amusements, we presume that they will still prove popular.

A public installation of officers of American lodge, No. 26, Daughters of Rebekah, will be held at the Odd Fellows hall on Saturday evening. The public are invited.

The spectacle of two melancholy Greelyites devouring a head of cabbage in front of a grocery store last evening drew tears from the spectators. They have eaten crow till the stuff went stay down without something to hold it and they naturally take to cabbage, as an antidote for indigestion and as a stomach solace in the hour of affliction.

Allen, of the late Stoughton Reporter, called yesterday. Allen is a through democrat and when he heard of the action of the Baltimore convention he boxed up his type, closed his office and announced the suspension of his paper till his party puts forward some one he can support.

We hear of an instance where a California family sent all the way to Janesville for a hired girl. Janesville is full of good girls but it does not behoove in that sort of free trade. In such instances high tariff is our only protection.

Another ducking party started for Lake Koshkonong yesterday, lead by that redoubtable slayer of feathered swimmers, Dick Valentine. They go to Black Hawk Island.

seraphic o'er this idiotic traffic, when we'd like to take a bludgeon or an ax, and slay, and slay! It is hard to keep on beaming when the girl next door is screaming some old stale, moth-eaten ballad of the Injun maiden kind; hard it is to be pretending that the melody heart-rending is a solace to your spirit, a refreshment to your mind. It is hard to keep on grinning in a tashion glad and winning when the tall distinguished stranger you've admitted to your home proves to be a base, designing agent who begins a whining of his starving wife and parents and his "History of Rome." Ah, the strain on us is frightful when we smile and cry "Delightful!" at the coming of some kindred whose arrival's a surprise; oh, we think their visit nervy, for the house is topsy-turvy, and the shack's already crowded, and the larder's short of pies. We are most heroic mortals! Every day man smiles and chortles when he's full of gall and wormwood and would like to wall a few; every day when he'd be weeping if he had his way he's keeping up a front serene, undaunted, crying cockadoodle!

LABOR TROUBLES.

In viewing baseball games, at times we note with great dislike a man who labors not at all, yet goes out on a strike. Find a laborer.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

An active year is foreshadowed with satisfactory returns for your efforts. You will see opportunities for advancement and will take care that they are not wasted.

Those born today will be successful and by their own efforts will rise to high positions. They should be trained to have patience, the quality they most need.
